NATIONAL CAMPAIGN UNDERWAY

Canada Requires Higher Standard Physical Fitness

War Effort Demands Greater Attention To Improved Conditions

A greater standard of health and physical fitness is one of Canada's chief requirements if the nation is going to continue to increase its contribution to the tremendous war effort of the United Nations.

Has Heavy Task

This was one of the main points expounded by leading health authorities throughout the length and breadth of the country as plans for featuring March as a month devoted to good health, were completed.

Officials of the Health Department are fully aware of the importance of the situation and some idea of the magnitude of their problem was outlined in a recent address by Hon. Ian MacKenzie, minister of pensions and national health.

"Every day," the minister said, "50,000 Canadian workers are absent from their places in the shop and the office because of ill-health."

ECONOMIC DRAIN

"It is a far greater economic drain than accidents for which we have set up elaborate systems of workmen's compensation."

The measured cost of sickness in Canada is estimated at $122,000,000 a year. Waste—there waste. And it is avoidable.

One fraction of this amount spent constructively in sickness prevention is capable of yielding incalculable returns in greater human efficiency. We have a system which allows for our 30,000,000 Dominion government employees.

"If we have in a few years cut down the lost days by 122,000,000, we would have saved $122,000,000."

The regulations have a bearing on the great subject of nutrition—one of the most vital factors in public health. In the United States, it was authoritatively estimated at a great nutrition conference recently that $500,000,000 persons are mildly undernourished and showed it in such ailments as chronic fatigue, indigestion and emotional instability.

MAKE TWO SURVEYS

"We have made one of two nutritional surveys in Canada and, while they have not been broad enough to justify any such sweeping statement as that to which I am referring, we have found that a substantial portion of our working population is undernourished."

"It is not altogether poverty—there is much in it of ignorance. For instance, in the great agricultural country with its unlimited supplies of food, it is astonishing number of people do not eat enough bread or drink enough milk."

"Here, then, is a great field for a campaign of public education which must bring home to people a more widespread knowledge of the vitamins and nutritional values of the different foods and of how to cook and serve them—get the most and the best out of them."

Doctor Advises

Regular Health

Examinations

Periodic health examination and annual overhaul of the body machine are absolute essentials to the maintenance of good health,

Dr. G. M. Little, city medical health officer, stated Saturday.

"The body, the human machine, is the greatest of all machines, yet it seldom gets an overhaul from birth until death unless some thing goes wrong with it," he said.

Here are some of the highlights of advice given by Dr. Little on "how to keep well."

FOOD IMPORTANT

Food is perhaps the most important of food be eaten, and in sufficient quantity, but the manner of taking it is important. Food should be completely masticated, and the calls for good teeth. Good teeth, in turn, depend on the type of food eaten; moreover, the quality of one's teeth depend in large measure upon the character of the mother's food before the baby is born.

The mother's food, often called the protective foods, are whole wheat bread and cereals, milk, eggs, fish, a moderate supply of meat fresh vegetables, and fruit.

NEED GOOD COOKING

Good cooking is almost as important as the quality of the food itself. Vegetables, for instance, often lose their vitamins in overcooking.

Highly-spiced foods should be used sparingly.

Alcohol, if used at all, must be taken in moderation for the sake of good health. There is no evidence that tobacco is harmful to the average person except perhaps in those with a dualistic ulcer, certain forms of heart disease and an affection of the blood vessels known as Muerger's disease. In these cases," Dr.

Little said, "tobacco should not be used."

SOME FUNDAMENTALS

Air, sunshine and exercise are fundamentals in health. Walking is one of the best forms of exercise. In summer, severe sunburn should be avoided.

Home surroundings are highly important. Overcrowding is a danger to health and morale. Naturally a lack of proper sanitary facilities makes proper health work in the home and is another deterrent to health.

DIRECT WEAPONS

There are many direct weapons of preventive medicine. The most important are:

1. Improved health agencies.

2. Increased use of voluntary health organizations.

3. Increased funds for public health work.

4. Employment of the general practitioner who invariably sees all forms of disease before any other kind of disease. Naturally a lack of proper sanitary facilities makes proper health work in the home and is another deterrent to health.

5. Employment of the school medical services in the investigation of heart disease among preschool and school children of grades, with special equipping.

6. Development of heart-disease associations in all large cities.

The word telegraph dates back to 200 B.C. It is a combination of two Greek words: "tele," "far off," and

"graph," "to write," or literally, to write far off.

Medical Officer

Dr. G. M. Little, city medical officer of health, who directs the campaign to bring better health of Edmonton residents.

Eyes Require

Constant Care

Regular examinations of the eyes are important to continued good health, experts often point out.

Few people have eye defects from birth. Others develop them from close work, poor light or lack of certain vitamins needed in the diet.

If your vision is at all defective,

a specialist can prescribe correc-

Dentists Urge

Care Of Teeth

As Necessity

The dental profession has made enormous strides since it first was established in America more than a century ago. Dentistry, as a profession, had been practiced before then for many hundreds of years.

There are three main reasons why the teeth should be cared for:

1. Because pincure for teeth becomes the seat of local infection that may spread through our bodies, and cause untold damage to various organs, as well as death.

2. Because good teeth enable us to chew our food properly and go to enjoy our food and promote digestion.

3. Because good teeth improve one's personal appearance.

TEETH DEVELOP

The teeth begin to develop five months before the child is born.

The mother, at this time, must supply the materials to build her own, and the teeth. This the mother ought to consult her doctor and dentist relative to a diet that contains adequate amounts of these:

1. Calcium

2. Phosphorus

3. Vitamins A, C and D

The importance of "baby teeth" must not be overlooked, despite the fact they usually all drop out before the child is 12. But these teeth are present while the child is growing, developing any bony structure. They should not be allowed to decay, or they may hurt the health in later life.

FIRST STEP

The first important step is to have the family dentist examine the child's teeth thoroughly at the age of two years. He gains the confidence of the little ones and they soon look on him as a friend.

These periodic examinations should be continued every year or two.

sable for motorizing and many sports,

McCallum And Frith Boost Five-Pin Doubles To 1,660

Two new leaders moved into the spotlight of the five-pin tournament at Recreation alleys on Friday night, when Ralph Morgan hiked the singles up to 896 and Joe McCallum and Lloyd Frith combined in the doubles for 1,660.

Compiling as a member of the Alberta in the mixed team event, Evelyn Green turned in a triple of 865. This score is the highest three games in actual pins for the entire tournament.

The new men's singles and doubles marks made yesterday not only were the highest for the week, but they both bettered the records made in last year's tournament. Ralph Morgan's 896 is a jump of 14 pins over Harold Alton's winning singles of 882 a year ago, and the Fredrick Frank-Turner-Bloom score of 1,623 which was good for first place in the previous tournament, exactly 35 pins under the figure posted by Joe McCallum and Lloyd Frith yesterday.

ALERTS SECOND

Evelyn Green's top triple was a real help to the Alerts, for the team's 3,282 in addition to being best in the mixed team event last night was good enough to take over second place in the standings. Capitals lead with 3,255. Deadheads rolled 3,054.

Len West stood next to Morgan in the men's singles results in Friday's session with 827 and Broome had 792.

Mrs. Jack McDonald was turned for ladies' singles with 747 and Lauder had 708.

Lambrook-Hall ranked next to McCallum-Frith with 1,518 and Hillon-Aldrich scored 1,412 in the men's doubles.

Ferrero-Frith had top ladies' doubles count of 1,217 and in mixed doubles Dick-Hillon duo was sixth with 1,070, followed by Bruce Beckwith's 1,042 and Kellas-Frith with 1,004.

Laud and Mines had best men's team count last night of 2,329 and Dawson Mines made their best team.

High ladies' team yesterday was A.G.T. with 2,788. Rumberia, being second with 2,580.

"CALGARY DAY"

Today is "Calgary Day" at the tournament and the bowlers from the southern city will start off at 12 o'clock noon. A big delegation is expected from Calgary and it will include several of that city's best.

The following were entered last night in various ladies' events: Mrs. C. Hillon, Mrs. R. Bailey, Mrs. J. Jeffries, Miss L. Parr, Mrs. L. Fleming, Miss L. Swiften and Mrs. W. Ingham.

Included in the men's list from Calgary are J. Dima, G. Dew, W. Broome, K. McDermid, G. Gilker, L. Fleming, J. Meakin, H. Hillon, J. Egleston, R. Ormon, H. Hillon, W. Aldrich, Paul Broome, M. Rich, Arthur, C. Palmer, M. Weisler.

The K. McDermid mentioned above paired with Miss K. Hume to win the mixed doubles in last year's tournament with a score of 1,494.

Take 260 Points To Rossdale's 210

Despite pretexts from the weather, the Federation of Community Leagues speed skating carnival went ahead as per schedule at Seona Centre rink on Friday night. A second group of 16 events will be on tonight's program.

As a result of the first night's racing, Westmount speedsters are in front with a total of 760 points, Rossdale being in second place with 210. Cloverdale has 50, Jasper Place 30 and Seona Centre 20 points. Bud Hall and Blanche Tivotdale, both of Westmount, are the only two-event winners.

Although the ice showed the effects of the past few warm days, it was really good under the circumstances and the committee wisely held up the program until just after 6 o'clock to give old Jack Frost a chance to get his feet set.

A total of 92 entries were received for the meet, and most of those who were to compete on the first night were right on the job when Lloyd Jones, chairman of the carnival committee, gave the official go-ahead signal.

The claims for girls under 12 and 14 and boys under 16—220 yards—evidently were the most popular as each had no less than eight entries.

The Community Leagues are encouraging the younger speedsters, as shown by the fact that there were four entries in the boys' 8 and under class and three for girls of the same age. Bobby McKenzie of Jasper Place won his event and Maude

Joe DiMaggio Refuses $40,000

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Joe DiMaggio, slugging third baseman of the New York Yankees, yesterday rejected the club's offer of a one-year contract with a salary of $40,000. This is a $2000 increase over what he received last season.

Announcement of DiMaggio's refusal was made by Ed Barrow, club president who called newspapermen into the club here from New York office.

"DiMaggio just telephoned and turned down our offer of $40,000," Barrow said. "We made this offer to him last Wednesday and this is the club's final offer."

National Hockey League Playoffs Start March 21

TORONTO, March 7.—(CP)—The National Hockey League board of governors decided a meeting in Toronto Friday to start the Stanley Cup playoffs on the week-end following the close of the schedule, March 18.

All three playoff series will start either on March 21 or 22, depending on the team that has first choice of dates, it was ruled at the meeting.

No change was made in the playoff arrangements followed in other years. The first two teams will meet in a best-of-seven series for the right to enter the Stanley Cup final while the third and fourth will play a best-of-five series.

The fifth and sixth place clubs will chase in best-of-three rounds.

Should New York Rangers, the present league leaders, win the N.H.L. title, the first game in series "A" will be held in New York's Madison Square Garden on March 22, but if Toronto make Leafs, now holding second place, take the crown, the series opener will be in Toronto March 21.

With Boston and Chicago likely to finish in third and fourth places, respectively, series "B" will probably start in Boston March 22. Series "C" is expected to bring long-haul Detroit's fifth-place Red Wings and either New York Americans or Montreal Canadiens.

The round is expected to start in Detroit March 22 and continue in New York or Montreal March 24 with the third and deciding game back in Detroit March 26.

Will Preside

H. R. Miller, K.C., chairman of the Edmonton advisory board, who will preside at a public farewell service Monday for Major and Mrs. E. T. Waterston and Adjutant and Mrs. Berton Dumerton, Salvation Army officers who are leaving the city.

will be given on Friday night by Rev. Mrs. Elliott.

TODAY'S MESSAGE

By MAJOR E. T. WATERSTON
District Social Officer, Salvation Army.

AN APPRECIATION

HAVING arrived at the end of my tenure of office as Salvation Army Social Service Director for Edmonton and district, I would be very glad indeed if I did not offer to the people of this community some expression of my appreciation of their good-will to me.

Mrs. Waterston and I arrived in Edmonton four and one-half years ago. We were strangers in a strange city, but there was love in the responsibilities that were given to us and that fact in itself brought us into contact with many people very speedily. We found them, without exception, warm hearted, kindly disposed and easy to get acquainted with. That has made our work so much easier, and our task so much lighter.

We have had the unstinted co-operation of public officials, both in the governmental and city services. Too much cannot be said of the friendly and co-operative attitude of the officers of all the other Social Service Agencies with whom we have worked. Then, too, we found that the Press could be counted on at all times to give a full measure of their invaluable service, and that also applies to the officers and staffs of the local Radio Stations. Then, too, there is that great host of Edmonton's fine business men, who as the ordinary citizen in the street who have been really fine in their consistent friendliness and willingness to co-operate in every worthy effort.

We leave behind us a host of friends, but we will carry with us a myriad of happy memories, which will be cherished in the years to come.

The world needs a friendly spirit today. Our prayer is that "The Spirit of Edmonton" may become "The Spirit of the World." May God be with you all and prosper you with health and wealth and in the riches of Him who said: "Ye are my friends."

Mission Ends At First Baptist

Services in the First Baptist church Sunday mark the close of a preaching mission of one week under the leadership of the Rev. G. V. Crofton, who is minister of the First Baptist church at Lethbridge. The general theme of the mission is "You and Your Church" and Mr. Crofton's ministry in song and word is proving to be most helpful to the church.

This special ministry is a part of the Jubilee Program of the church, which is being carried forward throughout the year, the emphasis being given in all phases of the church's life as this mission is a personal allegiance to Christ and the privilege of membership in the Christian church.

"Man" is the subject of the sermon at all Christian churches on Sunday. The Golden Text is Malachi 2:10, "The Scripture saith, 'For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death' (Romans 8:2).

One of the corollary passages from "Science and Health with Key" by Mary Baker Eddy is "The sinless joy—the perfect harmony and immortality of possessing united, divine beauty and goodness without a shadow of sin."

Your Child's Eyes
The most important tool in a child's unquenchable thirst for knowledge is his or her eyes. Eighty per cent of the child's learning is acquired through the marvel of vision. Parents take great pride in their children. They wish with happy contentment when their children are the bright, smiling child who is properly fitted with eyes.

ROBINSON MACHINE & SUPPLY CO., LTD.

Back in 1938 Mr. Geo. N. Robinson organized the Robinson Machine & Supply Co., Ltd. That was only three years ago, but right now the company has two branches, employs some fifty men and has a payroll in excess of $6000 per annum.

When a company develops like this it must have something which the public need. Robinson Machine & Supply Co., Ltd. has it. The Robinson Machine & Supply Company manufactures "Robin" Manifold Units for tractors. First made in the McCormick-Deering the "Robin" Manifold Unit is now being made in the name of Robinson. It is a good tractors manifold, first being constructed by quality rather than heating. The result is amazing. Equipment with a "Robin" tractor develops more power. By actual test it will pull the same load in the higher gear.

The "Robin" Grain Header takes on loads of grain at the rate of 20 bushels per minute. That means it will move three tons of grain in exactly five minutes. But that isn't all. The "Robin" Grain Header works over either side or end of the truck box.

And in addition to the Alberta Trade-Marked products mentioned, the Robinson Machine & Supply Co., Ltd. does welding, machining and heavy construction. Factory installed in war work they also make tanks, shovels, conveyors and gravel crushers, etc. for farms and contracting.

Robinson Machine & Supply Co., Ltd. has a branch store in a building at 2122 South. Their products are appreciated in both provinces.

DOMINION PLANT TURNS OUT "BLITZ-BUSTERS"

McNaughton Puts Accent On Youth In Canada's Army

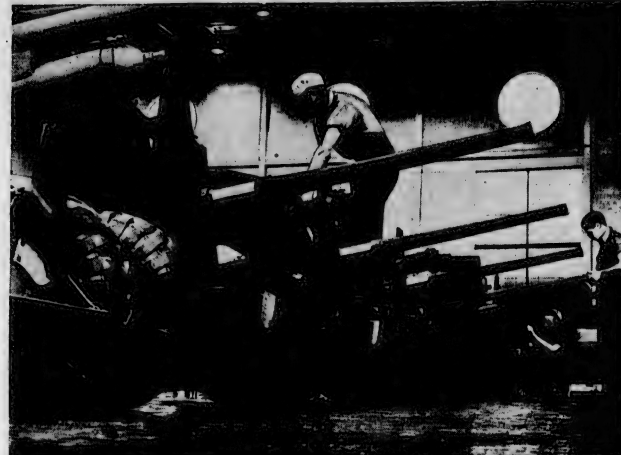

Visiting war plants in Toronto, Lieutenant-General Andrew McNaughton, commander-in-chief of Canada's armies in the field and at home, paid a visit to the plant of Research Enterprises Ltd. He is shown, above, viewing prisms made at the plant which are used for range finders, binoculars, telescopes and many other magnifying units. While in Toronto, General McNaughton expressed the view that Canada's expanding army should be, and will soon be, a young man's army. He expressed the view that lieutenant-colonels should not be over 30, brigadiers well under 40, divisional commanders—major-generals—not much over 40, and other senior officers about 50.

New Zealanders Capture Nazi Tank In Desert War

Rarely does a photographer have the opportunity to record with such exactness, what takes place when an enemy tank is captured. A New Zealander, foreground, keeps his man covered with a pistol, while another member of the squad, centre, watches closely as another German member of the tank crew clambers out. On the left, standing back a bit, another New Zealander covers the entire scene. The capture took place in the Libyan desert.

Large quantities of these two pounder anti-tank guns are being turned out daily along with many other types of weapons, at an undisclosed Canadian armament plant. These guns will prove more than match for Hitler's tanks.

Wartime Waikiki

Barbed wire lines the beaches of wartime Waikiki, but doesn't keep these Honolulu beauties from sunbathing on the warm Hawaiian sands.

HEROIC ACTION INSPIRES COMRADES IN BATTLE

Brereton Of "Little Black Devils" Won His V.C. At Amiens In 1918

On a peaceful August evening 23 years ago, the 8th Battalion of Winnipeg debused near Amiens after a fast and secret move to the south from the Vimy sector. They marched toward the line through a darkness that was muffled and talking with suspicious traffic. All the world seemed to be tipping, and on the move in the surrounding night. Tanks whirled and lurched across country, but their voices seemed to be muted. Every cross-road was a cluster of horse and motor transport, but the extensive vocabulary of revving, pistoning, rattling, and clanking, were still by the prevailing hush. Long ammunition columns and battery gun-limbers shouldered heavy-laden files of infantry to the ditches, but the usual interview expatriation was directly subdued.

It was the historic, last-minute assembly of the Canadian Corps for the surprise attack at dawn on August 8th. Everything was streaming eastward through the night for the assault which has since become famous in history as Germany's "Black Day."

Watching the shadowy files of the 8th Battalion moving past the darkened doorway of his new headquarters, was a big man wearing a Lieutenant General's rank badge. He was suddenly thrilled to the side-steps of his dust-covered field-house.

The Little Black Devils were among on the march.

It was not that the Canadians had stopped the cherry habit of every weary miles with their marching songs that their ardent Chorus now elated the Corps Commander. They had missed all the shock and attrition of the German's powerful offensives in the spring of 1918 when for a time infected British Infantry with a vengeful gloom so that they had taken to plodding the French cobble and French pave in stolid silence. But singing soldiers had been almost a rarity in recent dark weeks, and Sir Arthur Currie heard the voices of the 8th Battalion players as an omen of victory for the morrow. He turned to an aide and impulsively exclaimed: "Nothing will stop these boys!"

Leading the 8th Battalion's nocturnal rendition of "Macnamara Band" that memorable August night was a youth who had been born on a Manitoba farm, and who had been named for the nearby prairie village of Alexander—Corporal Alex Brereton, of the Lewis guns.

It was a historic march for the Little Black Devils, though they did not realize that they were heading for the first Canadian battle of mechanized war, and an assault which so clearly marked the turning of war's tide that the entire British Army would start singing again. It was even more memorable for Corp of it was through that he, too, did not know

It was a historic march for the Little Black Devils, though they did not realize that they were heading for the first Canadian battle of mechanized war, and an assault which so clearly marked the turning of war's tide that the entire British Army would start singing again. It was even more memorable for Corp of it was through that he, too, did not know that young Alex Brereton rose to the heights of valor. The 8th Battalion took position and sheltered in a wood, while the day's zero hour moved forward again and again as they waited for tanks and artillery to open unbelieved country side east of Amiens was antebellum and quiet, shrouded and straggling from the heavy down mists. The surprise attack had been so well organized that it was mounted and launched while the German trench-holders were still confident that the Canadians were in process of taking over trenches near Ypres, 40 miles to the north. Behind the enemy's line, impressed French peasants found to just another day of early harvesting.

The concerted crash of hundreds of unregulated guns spoke at 4:30 a.m. Low flying airplanes helped drive the engine-ruar of 127 light and 324 heavy tanks, which had suddenly debouched from their hides five minutes before the horrace broke. In an incredibly short time groups of prisoners in German field grau were being herded down the Amiens-Roye road under the menace of armoured cars and solitary infantrymen.

The first day's battle was such a startling triumph that it marked the end of fighting with eyes looking over the shoulders to the sea! The combination of surprise and tanks made the advance so rapid that it outpaced the barrage in the early stages and then drew beyond field-gun range. In two hours 16,000 prisoners had been captured; by noon tanks and armoured cars were nearly 12 miles into German held territory.

But Friday, August 9th, was a different story. The advantage of surprise was over. Many tanks had been knocked out. The advance was coming into country that could be more strongly defended into place. In front was a German position whose hanked machine-guns planned down the 4th Division at the end of their attack the day before. It had to be overcome before an advance in depth could be achieved.

But the tanks failed to arrive and the light barrage, which was put down at 1 p.m. when the assault was finally launched, failed to crush the deadly menace of the machine-guns in the 8th Battalion's centre. It was up to the infantry to deal with their obstacles themselves, without aid from supporting arms.

With "B" and "C" Companies in the lead, the Battalion moved resolutely into view and started across open ground. The fire at once increased to a murderous hail. Men after men went down, hit with a crash of equipment. They took it in short rushes and still the casualties were appalling. The first-wave platoon was suddenly caught on an open slope under the veritable onset of a row of Maxims, which opened on them with a concerted sweep.

The remnants as suddenly took cover. There was so little protection on the exposed slope that in a matter of moments the entire platoon was certain to be annihilated. The line desperately hugged the ground, except for one man—Corporal Brereton.

At once appreciating the hazard of their position, the Lewis-gun corporal defiantly stood erect. With contemptuous disregard for the seething hail from guns, he calmly observed that there were six of them, that they were fired roughly in a row, and that if the nearest heavily-manned post were overcome the balance could also be captured.

A cautious man would have sought cover after that close-up survey; he would have been content to leave the initiative to his superiors. But Brereton, with a surge of high gallantry of which only heroes are made, rushed headlong for the first post—the gun which was causing the greatest havoc.

Armed with a rifle now, Brereton shot the nearest German through the head. As a second gunner frantically tried to slew the muzzle towards the lone attacker, Brereton hurled himself into the trench, bayonetting the man as he jumped. The nine men remaining in the post were so disconcerted by the corporal's impetuous bravery that they surrendered.

The reaction to Brereton's gallant act was immediate. Inspired by his audacious courage and answering his directions and commands, his platoon swiftly rushed the remaining five posts, the whole position falling a matter of moments after Brereton's single-handed success.

Later that day, when the final objective had been consolidated, Corporal Brereton found that he had missed death so narrowly that a machine-gun bullet had slashed a note-book carried in the breast pocket of his tunic "Pretty clean" was his laconic comment as he sent it to his mother for a souvenir.

Brereton, who enlisted with the 14th Battalion in January 1916, was back in service at an early date in the present war. He is now a Company Quarter master on the staff of the Military Training Centre at Grande Prairie, Alta.

THE BRIDE CAME FORTH

By Louise Holmes

CHAPTER XXX (Contd.)
She shook her head. "How could you have thought that, Jim? I'm a wife—and a little boy—Vicky covered her face, cringing away from that dreadful night when Jim's wife and his little boy had come to her."

He had her by the shoulders, shaking her, leaning down until his face almost touched her hair. "What are you saying?" he asked hoarsely. "What are you saying?"

"Your wife, Jim—and Billy. He came to me and asked—and they came to my house in Blue Valley."

"Good God in heaven," he gasped. "Get this straight, Vicky. I have no wife and I have no son."

Dropping her hands, she attempted to wriggle out of his grasp. "Don't let me," she said.

"Don't you?" he asked violently, her sense benumbed by his nearness. Hope and doubt and unanswered questions swirled giddily in her mind.

NOT MARRIED
"I am not married," he stated flatly. "I never have been and never will be until I marry you." Gazing at Vicky in his arms, he carried her to a big old chair. She lay quietly, head on his shoulder, trying to think, unable to think. Her hand went up to his cheek. Her head fell back on his arm.

"When did you come back?" she asked softly. So wonderful to be there in Jim's arms. So breath-takingly wonderful. Let the questions wait, the questions about the girl had said she was Jim's wife who had had her own life. Let their marriage couldn't work. Let them wait just a little while.

"Got back two weeks ago," he told her. "Happened to hear you on the radio." Jim's narrowed eyes gazed at the faded wall paper. They were speculative and grim.

The grimaces vanished when he looked down at Vicky. "Did you accomplish your mission for the government?" he asked.

"Sure—sure," he kissed her, his lips soft as feathers. "Did you accomplish your mission for the government?" he asked.

"Sure—sure," he kissed her, his lips soft as feathers. "Did you accomplish your mission for the government?" he asked.

recovered hung from a wall, looking at Vicky, his face pale and his eyes wide open. "Vicky, I lifted it to her ear. 'Hello, infant. Listened to your broadcast. Hearty congratulations are in order.'—Vicky heard no more. Closing her eyes, she clung to the telephone. Eric, who had had forgotten Eric, whom she had married that afternoon."

CHAPTER XXXI
"Vicky—are you there?" Eric demanded impatiently.

"Yes—I'm here. How's your ankle, Eric? Jim up there in the apartment. His kisses still warm on her lips. Eric in Anna's guest room. Eric her husband. But he had said she could be free. He had said she only need mention it and she would be free."

"Quite comfortable," he answered. "Dr. Carlson is an old lady. I'll be out of here in a day or so."

"That's good. I—I want to see you—about something." Vicky wasn't the time to mention Jim but her mind was full of him. Eric might be well known.

"About what? Your success tonight? Don't sign a thing until I get there."

"It's something else, Eric. She was trembling violently, holding on to the telephone.

"What?"

"Oh, Eric. I made another mistake this afternoon. I knew we shouldn't be married. I felt it. Jim is here."

"What? It was like a pistol shot."

"He isn't married. He isn't married at all. He's back from South America—on, Eric." She waited. There was a dead silence at the other end of the line. Vicky leaned her forehead against the transmitter. All at once something. Vicky remembered having told Eric in telling him she had lost something precious, something that she hadn't realized was precious until that moment. She heard a metallic click.

"Eric—Eric—"

There was no answer and she hung the receiver in his hook. Lifelessly, she waited up the stairs. Coming down, she had been vibrantly conscious of Jim.

"Dressing slowly upward, she had a vast awareness of Eric. What had he? If Jim were the man she loved, and he was, why then this overwhelming regret that she had told Eric? It was as if she had set fire to a bridge and, now that it flamed in ruins, she longed frantically to return to the other shore, the safe shore where Eric dwelt. Her emotions and reactions jumbled horribly.

Jim met her at the top of the stairs. He led her into the small apartment, closing the door, saying, "Did you see a ghost?"

"She said, 'Quick little jerk of her head. Everything is mixed up.'—he said, 'Help me straighten it out, will you, Jim?' When he sat down, holding out his arms, she said, 'I'll be here. I've got to think—hard.' Odd that she had no will to return to Jim's arms."

All right. Think about it. His eyes were wary.

She rubbed an up-and-down line between her salty brows with a thoughtful forefinger. "Jim," she said, "I don't want to see you—about something." Vicky wasn't the time to mention Jim but her mind was full of him. Eric might be well known.

"About what? Your success tonight? Don't sign a thing until I get there."
